An Extended Interview With Secretary Bayard.

STATE DEPARTMENT

In Relation to the Trouble and the Latest Phases of the Question, and Says Germany Has Given Us No Cause for War. Whitney Declines to Make Public Captain Mullen's Report.

BALTIMORE, Jap. 30 - The Sun's correspondent called upon Secretary Bayard at his residence, and had an extended interview with him on the Samoan question Mr. Bayard described the course of the departtally when drinking, was taken from his bed i ment of state in relation to Samoan affairs and the latest phases of the question. To the by White Caps, and whipped severely with statement that the administration has been twitted with baving no definite policy on the Samoan question, he referred to the president's message to congress and accompanying documents, which he says show that the administration long ago defined its poncy with reference to the Samoan islands, and has consistently adhered to it ever since that policy was one of friendly interest in Samoa with a atrality.

So long as the other powers having interand four years five months and twenty-eight many-wer-come and, he has exhausted the arts of diplomacy to secure the Samoan people the right to gove n themselves and ginia legislature to require railroad compames to transport, free of charge, all state and Great Britain both assented to the officers and mem ers of the legislature durent with her professions, have grown out of petty political intrigues among native chiefs and the invalid of foreigners for influence and commercial supremacy. The whole question for Americans to consider, Mr. Bayard says, is whether we shall continue to the Gern ans or assume the role of belligerents toward Germany in behalf of one or two claimants to the throne

So far, Germany has given the United States absolutely no cause for war. It is not true that American property has been wantonly destroyed by the Germans or the American flag fired upon. He said the tattered remnants of the flag said to have been fired upon by the Germans had been received at the state department. It was not the flag at the American consulate, but was in a little village which was being shelled by the Germans The village took fire and the flag was partially burned. It was not hoisted in as sertion of any American rights and was not fired upon or insulted Besides the German government has expressly disclaimed any incention of giving this country any cause of offense.

In reply to those who contrast the vigorous course of Secretary Bayard toward the puny republic of Hayti with his alleged timidity in dealing with the big empire of Germany, the secretary said the situations in Haytı and Samoa were wide'y different. Haytr had distinctly violated its treaty obligations to this country and had seized an American vessel. The United States in this instance had the right to act alone for it alone was concerned in the proceedings complained of

The last conference was held on July 25, on which occasion there was a deadlock, the German munster submitting one proposition, and Mr. Bayard another as to the manner in which Samoa should be governed. wholly by surprise when the German minister called at the state department one morning in August and left a memorandum stating that his government proposed to independently protect its own interests and rights in Samoa and obtain the satisfaction and reparation begined to be due to its National honor; also in case Malietoa was either not willing or not powerful enough to give

Referring to Senator Sherman's resolution providing for the appropriation of $500,000 for maintaining a United States coaling station at Samoa, Secretary Bayard said that a great deal had been said about the prompt and patriotic action of the senate in this particular. In the first place if the Republican senators are sincere in the intention to protect American interest in Samoa against the alleged outrages of the German government $500,000 is a very small amount to go to war on. It would not purchase the 1,000,000 tons of coal which certain Republican senators say should be landed there, nor would it build a single gunboat.

Captain Mullen Submits a Report-WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 .- Secretary Whitney has received a long report from Capt. Mullen, commanding the United States steamer Nipsic, dated at Apia, Samoa, Decomber 26, giving a detailed account of occurrences on those islands since December 3, the date of his last report to the department. and covering the period of the engagements between the natives and the Germans. and of the alleged insults to the American

A copy of the report will be furnished to the secretary of state, and will probably be transmitted to congress the latter part of this. week, together with the correspondence received, on Saturday, from acting Consul-General Blacklock, on the same subject. The officials refuse positively to make public, at this time, any of this correspondence, confining themselves to the simple statement that there is nothing in it that has not aleady appeared in the newspaper accounts of the same occurrences.

Representative Herbert, chairman of the house committee on naval affairs, called at the state department Monday, and had a conference with Secretary Bayard in regard to the situation. It is reported as likely that the president will have something more to say on the subject when he sends to congress the correspondence which has taken place since his last massage. Monday's Baltimore Sun, the organ of Secretary Bayard, in an elaborate article on "Indecision in Our Samoan Policy," says: "The executive branch of the government is apparently firm in the opinion that its jurisdiction is absolutely terminated until decisive action of some character is taken by the legislative branch. Dissensions in the Cabinet. New York, Jan 30 -A Washington special to the Post says. There have been for several days rumors that there is a sharp difference of opinion in the cabinet on account of the Samoan complication. The latest form which the rumor has taken is that Secretary Whitney or Secretary Bayard may resign. Attempts made this morning plebiscitary agitation. It is asserted that to obtain any authorized information on this | this program has been discussed by the cabsubject were not successful. A United States senator says he is informed that there is much feeling between the president and secretary of state on account of the Samoan matter, and that the estrangement is of a serious character. This senator says that the president holds Secretary Bayard responsible for the situation, while friends of Secretary Bayard insist that the president has interfered in the affairs of the state department and is wholly responsible

Blaine's Samoan Policy.

WASHINGTON, Jan 30 -Senators Hale, Evarts and Cameron have had a private couference with Blaine, which lasted more than an hour. The Samoan question was the subject of discussion Blaine gave his views very freely as to the action he believed the state department should take in the present emergency. He also outlined the policy he would suggest in disposing of legislation proposed in the house naval committee, in response to Whitney's presentation of the case While no one of the gentlemen present will discuss in detail the views expressed by Blaine, it is generally understood be outlined a decidedly vigorous policy. The affair naturally assumes no little significance, in view of the extreme probability that Blame will take charge of the state department.

Prediction That the End of the Republic is Close at Hand.

THE SIGNATION REGARDED AS OMI-NOUS ON ALL SIDES.

President Carnot Says the Republic Has Not Been Affected By the Defeat of M. Jacques - German Newspapers Regard Boulanger's Success as an Evil Omen for France-Foreign Notes.

Paris, Jan. 30.—Doudeauville, presiding at a meeting of the Royalist Right Monday, said the "current events are to preclude the restoration of the monarchy. Only a few weeks ago I had the honor of being received by the Comte de Paris. I found him full of hope and thoroughly convinced that he will save France "

On all sides and by all parties the situation is regarded as ominous, and events are expected to quickly follow the Parisian endorsement of Boulanger. France has found an idol and Paris has indorsed a dictator, in the judgment of many. Yet Boulanger affects to be an uncompromising Republican. He says.

"Paris has acclaimed our program of dissolution and a constituent assembly. It is for us to pursue its accomplishment. The exposition of 1889, that great manniestation of our National genrus, must not be troubled by general elections, which, according to the constitution, are to be held on October 30 at the latest. It is better to have done with them at once. We ought to show foreign nations who are coming to visit us a constitution that is in harmony with its needs, and that has a government which emanates from the people instead of being a bast i. d regime in which all the institutions are those of monarchy, and which has nothing Republican about it except its name."

President Carnot said on deciming to accept the resignation of Floquet's cubinet: After all it was the republic that was acclaimed by the electors of the Same Gen. Boulanger, like M. The Germans Predict Trouble.

BERLIN, Jan 30.-The newspapers here of all shades of political opinion regard the success of Gen Boulanger as an evil augury for the French republic, and predict that the result will lead to the overthrow of the republic and quick succeeding surprises. The Vossische Zeitung says: "It was not Boulanger alone that was victorious, but also his program to establish a diciatorship and emphasize the fact that he is the man for the League of Patriots-that his glorious sword is to rend the peace of Frankfort and win back Alsace-Lorraine The French mean once more to be a great nation. That is is the significance of Boulange's success for Germany Nevertheless, oning to the personal madequacy of Boulancer, it is doubtful whether the decisive blow is closs at hand But many case the republic is ripe for the sickle "

The English View of the Situation. LONDON, Jan. 30.—The complete state of terror into which the French ministry have been thrown by the election of Gen Boulanger is rapidly detaching from adherence to the government a great many influential politicians, who, though they have no love for Boulanger, admire courage and abhor cowardice. #### HE WAS AT WATERLOO.

DONALD MILEOD.

No Was a Leader in the Canadian Inenrrection of the Thirtles, and Was Pursued Without Success by Gen. Scott-A Charmed Life.

[Special Correspondence.]

CLEVELAND, Jan. 24.—Died in this city, at the advanced age of 100 years and 6 months, Gen. Donald McLeod, who some time ago was a very remarkable man. Remarkable not only for his great age, but for the almost incredible adventures through which he had passed. It is seldon that men who meet with the largest share of hardship and adventure live to great ago, but den, McLeod was an exception in this respect. I was well acquainted with this remarkable man, and often conversed with him in regard to his early life. Some of these reminiscences which have never been published annot fail to be of general interest.

Gen. McLeod was, as would be judged by his name, a Scotchman. He was forn at Middle Rosse, near Aberdeen, and received a liberal education at Aherdeen university. His home was but a few miles from that of Lord Byron's infancy, and the latter was often seen by young McLeod until he grew to man-

At the time of the war of 1812 between this country and Great Britain the general was more than 30 years old and a soldier in the regular British army. He fought with bravery at Lundy's Lane and several other battles of that notable struggle, and at its close was transported with the other British troops to the continent of Europe, and unnediately engaged with Weilington in the masterly campaigns which crushed the power of the first Napoleon. He was actively engaged as captain of light hussars in all the battles preliminary to Waterloo, and took a brave part in that memorable centest.

"Have you any vivid memories of these great battles?" I asked. "Very vivid, indeed," he arewored, "but the common soldier cannot judge much of what is going on. His vision is very limited. He is only taken up with the work before him, and has no time to reflect upon or contemplate the grand proportions of the conflict. So far as I can now remember, there was nothin; peculiar in my part in the battle of Waterloo. It was the same old story over again-a constant round of firing and marching and countermarching un-til the victory was announced. I had no idea that a victory had been won cutil that time. I only knew that my company and my regiment had not re-treated; it was only when I read the accounts of the battle during the next few days that I gained any adequate idea of its magnitude.

GEN. M'LEOD.

A few years subsequent to the war with Napoleon, Gen. McLeod emigrated with his family to Canada, and at length brought up at the town of Prescott, and became editor and proprietor of the principal paper there. The despotic treatment of his fellow Scotchmen by the British officials in Canada called forth a just condemnation from his pen; and when at length the revolution of 1837-33 came, he was, by natural selection, made one of the most trusted leaders. As the rebellion grew in magnitude, he was given a major general's commission, and took part in the thickest of the fray. When the struggle became hopeless and the patriots were executed daily with great barbarity on every hand, he fled to the United States, and here immediately became the especial object of search by the United States authorities. Gen. Scott, who had been his friend, was ordered to arrest him for violation of the neutrality laws: and our hero being fearful that, if he were captured, he would be delivered up to his merciless adversaries across the lakes, took every precaution to secrete himself. But Gen. Scott was not easily to be baffied; he hunted his man up and down the entire length of the frontier twice; and the second time, in Detroit, entirely worm out and being assured that he would neither be delivered over to the British authorities nor severely punished here. Gen. McLeod gave himself up, and was soon after released from custody. The history of this remarkable chose is as fascinating as a commune. The redort table Scotch general seemed to lead a charmed life. At one place where it was thought he had stopped with a known sympathizer with the patriot cause, the Americans made a thorough search of the house. When they came to the second floor, the owner of the house showed them every apartment, and permitted them to search thoroughly until they came to the last one. "Here," said he, "is my old mothar's room. It will probably not be worth your while to spend much time in searching it." And throwing open the door he showed the old lady in cap and gown, with her back to the door, busily engaged in knitting. The efficers aid not wish to search the room, and the general, who was thus disguised, was passed. This incident happened in what is now called the Franklin house in this city. At another time our hero rode in the boot of a stage coach, for more than twenty miles with Gen. Scott, who was hunting bim, in the body of the coach. It is unnecessary to state, perhaps, that the driver was a patriot sympathizer.

On still another occasion, when the pursuers of the general were close upon him, he overtook a negro who was making slow progress along the road with a lame mule. The general was driving a fine team. A bargain was immediately struck and exchange made, on the condition that they should exchange overcoats and hats also, and that the darky should drive on as fast as the team could travel. The general's pursuers came up to the mule teamster; but seeing the carefully described cap of the general in the distance, they paid all attention to it; and when they came up to it, after a severe chase of several miles, and discovered the complexion of their prisoner, their chagrin can be better imag-ined than described. They were baffled, THE REMARKABLE HISTORY OF GEN.; and, returning in vain, sought for the driver of the mule.

Immediately upon the general's leaving Prescott a mob of Torics broke open his printing office and threw the type into the river and broke the presses. His faithful wife, with her four children, was left behind in a perfect horror of suspense. She did not know what she should do for daily sustenance, but, worse than all, she feared that harm had happened to her husband. At length, when he was released by the United States authorities, he sent for her to come to Cleveland, and here, in very destitute circumstances, he proceeded with the work of writing the only account which has ever been given of the causes which led to the bloody revolt. This little volume, being put upon the market, sold with some readiness, and he was relieved from distress by the proceeds.

ELECTRIC LIGHTING.

How Three Enthusiastic Boys Worked at It Thirty Years Ago.

[Special Correspondence.] NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—The companies controlling the myriad of electric wires in our streets are still battling against having them put under ground, and as fast as one of their obstructive barriers is knocked away set up another. Their latest professed objection is that the buried pipes of the Steam Heating company leak steam and keep the ground about them so hot and damp that a subway system in it cannot be successfully operated. It will not be at all surprising f they eventually claim like disastrous influences from the contiguity of Calvinists and Baptists living near their lines. Surely they will if by so doing they can work delay in the burying of Reverting to this matter recalls some interesting facts that have been lost sight of for a quarter of a century, but that are worthy of resurrection and retention in remembrance. New York was the first city in the world that it was proposed should be lighted by electricity, and the proposition was made by three brainy boys, then students in the New York collage, neither of them 19 years old at the time. One of those boys, the leading spirit in the scheme, was Edward Hoffmeyer Boyer, now principal of Grammar School No. 9; another holds a prominent editorial position on the most widely circulated newspaper in New York, and the third is, as he has been for years, an official in the weighers' department of the New York custom house. The three lads were enthusiastic students of electricity and conducted most of their experiments together. One day Boyer suggested to his fellows the magnificent idea of de-vising a practicable plan for economically lighting New York by electricity. The incandescent light was not yet dreamed of, but they knew that the decomposition of carbon by the electric current would produce an intense light—such as every-body knows now as the "arc light." They recognized before them the problems how to provide the current economically and how to distribute the light effectively, and on those they worked with purposeful patience for a couple of years. At length their scheme was perfected. The power they proposed to employ was the slow but certain and tremendous one of the rising and falling of the tide. They planned to have four enormous floats geared for the have four enormous floats geared for the generating of that power, one stationed on the "Foor House Flats," at the head times. The tendency of a community is constant of the the social queen, the of Avenue D; a second at Corlear's always toward its highest types. The Hook; a third at the foot of Canal street best, and not the worst, is imitated. One in the North river; and the fourth at the foot of West Twenty-third street. By ingenious appliances they arranged for the conservation of energy during the periods of slock tides and for regulating the operations of the machinery to uniformity at all times. Then, for the utilization of the light, they proposed to erect four towers, each 250 or 800 feet high, constructed of skeleton iron work like the tower now standing at Hallett's Point. One was to be placed in Tompkins square; a second, in or near Madison square; a third, in St. John's park, and the fourth somewhere near the city hall. The angles of radiation of each light were carefully calculated, and the heights of the several towers regulated accordingly, so as to give the widest possible diffusion to the lights, the practical effectiveness of which was to be still further enhanced by a system of superimposed reflectors. This plan was a bold one, and the boys had worked it out, in all its details, with the thoughtful care of able engineers, and so good was it that its principal features are now practically employed in the lighting of an English city. The in-auguration of the plant would have been expensive, each tower, it was computed, costing about $180,000, but the projectors demonstrated that the subsequent cost of operation would not exceed $50,000 per annum for the entire service.

The proposition, accompanied by an admirable set of illustrative drawings, ample explanatory matter and closely detailed calculation of cost, was presented to the board of aldermon in 1859, The livery stable keepers, gin sellers and ward heelers in that august body received the communication with shouts of laughter. The idea of lighting a city by electricity seemed intensely funny to "F wats electricity on whow?" them. asked one. "Damfino," replied another. They brayed at science, and laid the communication on the table. Doubtless there were flaws in the plan; it would be strange if there were not, coming as it did from three boys; but those boys were far ahead, in scientific knowledge, of the fellows who sat down upon them, and even had they offered nothing more than the germ of such a splendid idea, that germ was worthy of much more respectful consideration than it received. The fact deserves to go into history that municipal lighting was first proposed for the city of New York, and with it the other fact that it was proposed by representative American boys, whose being ahead of their fellow citizens was not so very strange after all, since they were ahead of all the rest of the world. From this account it appears Holland does the largest amount of trade per head of population. The extent of the average Hollander's commercial operations during the year totals up to 1.012 frames. ## THE YEAR BEGUN.

WASHINGTON'S SEASON IS NOW FAIRLY UNDER WAY.

Society at the Capital Is a Wonderfully Complex Affair, and Walter Wellman Here Gives a Very Interesting Letter Upon the Subject.

[Special Correspondence.] Washington, Jan '-The "season" has now fairly begun. Washington society has eagerly started on the merry round, for which the New Year's levee at the executive mansion was the signal, and which will abate only with the coming of Lent. What is Washington society? It is one of the most interesting things in the world. It is complex, shifting, transitory as to individuals, not thoroughly settled in its traditions, and ruled altogether by for es, two in num-ber, which are not by any means the highest types of , rsonal or social power. These forces are politics and money getting. There is no other society in America so completely dominated by two such elements. Elsewhere family, long residence, professional or literary ability count for much. Here they count for little. A peculiarity of Wash-ington society is that its leaders are crowned or dethroned at the ballot boxes. The change of a few thousand votes in a single state sweeps the major half of this society away, scatters it to the four winds of the earth, and sets in its place a new coterie. Political for-tune has in times past brought to the very forefront of this society individuals of uncouth person and rude manners. There have been presidents who spat tobacco juice on the carpets in the White House, and Mrs. Zach. Taylor used to smoke a corncob pipe in the East room. Illiterate, coarse men, from control of ignorant votes in a corrupt ward, through power in a congressional district or a state, and upward through all the stages of political ascent, have risen to the honor of leadership in capital society. In its greater and controlling part this is a society of politicians. A price which the people have had to pay for popular gov-ernment is the shame of seeing men make beasts of themselves in high places. In the lottery of politics many unworthy men have drawn great prizes. In days gone by these men brought ridicule upon the country. Travelers from foreign lands saw here to their amazement society leaders who smelled of tabacco and whisky, who wore unpolished boots at state receptions, who spilled wine and punch on the carpets of their hosts, who knew not the proprieties of dress or the retinements of speech. For decades society at this capital was the laughing

The system has not been changed, but the people have changed. Coarseness and uncouthness have had their day and disappeared. Politics still is the chief creative factor in Washington society. but its product is refined and uplifted. American eloquence and statesmanship may not have advanced a single step since the days of Webster, Clay and Jackson, but the national society has made wonderful strides toward decency and gentility. Washington society is typical of the growth of the nation. Wealth has become a factor in politics greater than our forefathers dreamed of its being. Wealth brings to the descendants of its getter, if not to him, opporvice after another is excommunicated; the coarse and vicious men are left by the wayside. The nation has made that wonderful advance from the days of Jackson and Taylor which leads it now to look to the manners of the men it honors. Probably an Andrew Jackson would not now be elected president of the United States, nor would a Webster with a Webster's vices, notwithstanding a Webster's genius, be now called to the premiership by any president.

While the substance of this Washington society has vastly changed for the better, its form remains the same. It is, to begin with distinctively an official society. It is born of the elective franchise. Its center is in the president and its radiations are largely through the the avenues of his favor or of the favor of the same people who made him. As it is now an official society, so was it under Washington, Adams, Jackson and Harrison the first. But a new element has been added—wealth. Years ago there was no unofficial society. Now the unofficial society of the capital city, composed of men of wealth and leisure, is important and influential. The number of rich residents attracted here by social opportunities and other delights of the city is rapidly growing. Income is almost an offset for political station, and capital society is now seen in two divisions, as OFFICIAL SOCIETY.

CNOFFICIAL SOCIETY.

ieroresoptativos. These orders of social precedence might be extended indefinitely. In the official order should be added the judges of the court of claims, judges of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, onicers of the army, navy and marine corps according to their rank; the commissioner of agriculture, the civil service commissioners, the interstate commerce commissioners, assistant secretaries of departments, assistant postaasters general, solicitor general, assistant attorney general, heads of bureaus, officers of the senate and house, chiefs of division, clerks in the departments, janitors, char-

Occasionally, too, literary or professional celebrity, or family connections, in part outweigh mere money, or assist a little money to go a long ways.

But let no one suppose that this society is rigid, exclusive, cold, altogether formal, perhaps heartless. You can't make human nature worse by cleansing and perfuming it any more than you can a handkerchief. Nobody that has seen so much as a glimpse of the Washington society of the present and who has heard ever so little of the Washington society of forty years ago would want to go back to the old thing, no matter how pleasing to his ear may be the trite phrases about republican simplicity and homespun honesty. The modern society is as much an improvement on the old as the typical American home of today, with its piano. books, dabbling in art and literature on the part of its occupants, is an improvement on the backwoods home of our honest but rough grandfathers. These official and unofficial sets blend admirably. Occasionally some poor but bright persons get in and enjoy themselves. Young men and women from all over the land, friends and relatives of senators, congressmen, judges, office holders, come here by hundreds and are "introduced." They like it. Naturally timid and full of strange ideas about the grandeur of Washington society, they expect to find all formality and no heart. They are pleasantly disappointed. What they do find is that no forms or manners were ever invented that could crush out human nature. Notwithstanding the manner in which these women were brought together, through the power of their husbands or fathers to get votes or win dollars, they are women of sincerity. lovableness, intrigue or envy, just as they would be in any other walk of life. Here goes the wife of a justice of one of the great courts, who, report says, is addicted to the consumption of liquors to excess. In plain English, she is said to get drunk, and that it has been often necessary for her coachman to carry her from the sidewalk to her room. Of another woman, high in social circles through her husband's official station, it is said she once connived with an attache of one of the foreign legations to ruin the reputation, though they were unable to degrade the character, of a young lady of whom this woman was envious. Water will find its level even in this artificially constructed social pool, and these women, though not thrown completely out of the current, are shunned and eddied as much as possible.

And there is Mrs. Whitney, the now famous wife of the secretary of the navy. Here is where dollars have helped again. Though the navy portfolio is fourth in the list of cabinet positions, Secretary and Mrs. Whitney have made it first in social importance. But they have not been able to do this through wealth aloue. They have had advantages which few in high station in this city possess. They have had social edu-cation, something which is, in this country, incidental to all other forms of education, to all other activities. Mr. and Mrs. Whitney entertain lavishly; they keep four houses and an army of servants. A common estimate of Mrs. Whitney, and the effect thereon of acquaintance with her, may be clearly shown in the words of Mrs. Senator Bowen, a charming woman from Colorado. woman of vast wealth, intimate with the Vanderbilts and Astors. I had thought her formal, cold, critical, and when I gave a tea one day at the Riggs house, to which she was expected, I fairly dreaded the moment in which she should make her appearance. I was nervous lest she should be too lofty, or there should be something to be criticised. But when Mrs. Whitney came I found she was more than a society leader—she was a woman. She has a heart. In a few minutes we were good friends. She became the life of our tea, with her bright face, kindly manners, ready wit. We were all drawn to her, and we could see why she had had such a brilliant career in Washington. People love her. She has tact and heart."

Washington society is full of such examples of human lovableness shining through all the maze of formality and putting true luster on the glitter of wealth and position.

Washington society is not so bad after all. In it you must, willy nilly, meet politicians elected from the ward whisks shop by the votes of their indulgent fellow citizens, and their wives, whose hands still bear the redness of the washboard; but the politician wears a dress coat inoffensively and leaves his chewing tobacco at home, while his wife restrains herself and trusts much to her dressmaker. This is in the system and cannot be gotten out without a revolution more violent than that of 76. The worst tendency of capital society is its sympathy with wealth. Comparatively poor men and women who can afford no more than dress suits, evening costumes and an occasional hansom are able to get in only the edges of this society. To get altogether in, to entertain as well as to be entertained, requires more money than a congressman has whose only in come is derived from his salary. No cabinet minister can live and entertain on his salary alone. The chief justice almost spends his salary in house rent. Secretary Whitney's salary would not pay his servants wages. There is any number of men in Washington who would like a taste of society, and who, with their wives and daughters, are capable of shining therein, but who are excluded by lack of means. With millions seeking cabinet places, there is mighty small show for the statesman who has to live on $100 a week. There are plenty of men in this country rich enough in brains and character to make good cabinet officers, but too poor in purse to think of taking such a post. In the cabinet making now common one often hears tim remark: "A good man, if he only has mones.

Unfortunciely, the two avenues to social pror mence in this country are getting in the hands of one set of persons. Politics and wealth, vote winning and money getting, are running too much hand in hand. There are few poor men in the senate. The number of rich men in the house is steadily increasing. Capital society has excommunicated the idolatry of the whisky bottle and put it its place the worship of the golden calf. The calf is more wholesome and respectable than the juice of the corn, but the day is coming when capital society, still glad to honor the man of position and the man of money, will be also glad to honor the man of ideas.

AN IMPRESSIVE SERVICE.

DEDICATED,

By Bishop Andrews, Assisted by Many Clergymen-A Full Report of the Occasion. Sunday, the fourth Sabbath in January of the carrent year, the day appointed for the dedication of the new First Methodist church of Massillon, marked a distinct epoch in the history of the church and in the annals of the city itself. The inclemency of the weather was a cause for serious regret; Jupiter Pluvius reigned supreme all day, and is probable that many, by reason of it, were deterred from issuing forth. But despite the continuous fall of the rain, the house both morning and evening was filled.

A tew minutes before the opening of the morning service, the auditorium presented a remarkably handsome appearance. The view from the balcony is the mest comprehensive, and so perhaps the most satisfactory. To one looking down into the body of the house the thought occurs that every inch of the flor has been brought into use. So unique is the arrangement of means that it is obviously the handiwork of some one possessing clever utilitarian ideas. The mellow light passing through stained glass windows of marvelous beau's somewhat relieves the sombre hues of the inverior decorations. About the allar, within the chancel rail, tall and graceful plants arose, cut flowers in profusion flanking them. In the puncit sat two whom few had ever see before, whom all hope to see again, Bishop E. G. Andrews, of New York, and the Rev. Dr. J. H. Bayliss, of Cincinnati, editor of the Western Coristian Advocant; with them sat Presiding Elder J. W. Toland, Pastor John Wilson, the Revs. J. M. Carr, Hiram Miller and J. R. Mills. Following the voluntary of the organist, opening the service, the Rev. Mr. Wilson, present incumbent of the pastorship, read Article No. 502 of the Me h dist discipline, which pertains directly to the dedication of church edifices. A hymn by the congregation, a fervent, eloquent prayer offered up by the Rev. Dr. Mills, an anthem from the choir, and a scripture reading followed in order And then Bishop Andrews advanced to the pulpit. The venerable bishop the has lived three score years and more) is a man of decidedly distintinguisted appearance. He is of medium heigh, and wears a black coat cut after the orthodox clerical fashion, buttoned tightly about his rather stocky frame. His face and manner are remarkably attractive, and little else is thought of while he king at him. He chose as his text the 31st and 32nd verses of the 13th chapter of St. Matthew: "Another paable but he forth unto them, saying The k-nadom of heaven is like a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and sowed in his field: Which indeed is the least of all seeds, but when it is grown it is the greatest among h rbs, and becometh a tr e, so that the birds of the air come and lodge in the branches thereof." He said that he thought that Christ's prophesy (for such it was) had become history. The growth of the Christian church was a grand evidence of it All time, indeed, dates from the birth of Chast-from the period of the inception of the Curistian religion. Some express donly's as to the real success of the church militant, and white admitting that it has accomplished much for civili-Zation, mai: tain that it should now divest itself of its supersticions, (as they term them) affirming that its organization is becoming effete. The Bishop said that he believed the dedication and consecretoen of a new church a very opportune time to inquire into the success of the scheme of religion. B lieving it could be best proven and illustrated by contras mg widely diff rent epichs, he would choose for consideration the current year and the year 1789-the year the arst settlement was made in Ohio. and the constitution of the United Statel adopted.

Teen about 4,000 000 colonists held a narrow strip of land stretching along the Atlan ic coast. To day the M ssissoppi valle, has been filled up and descendants of those celoms's have pushed their way to the western shore of this vast comment, and our population has increased to 65,000,000 of Christian people, generally speaking.

The vast area of Australia, much of which is yet unexplored, has been added to chris endom-subsidized to the service of Christ Jesus.

A h tle more than one hundred year ago began the reciaiming of ferale India from heathenism, a missionary work that has been greatly blessed. Spain had been in a measure redeemed. Two or three bundred years ago the subjugation of all Europe was threatened by Mohammed. The insolent lunks had even advanced sa far as the gates of Vienna, and continental Europe grew apprehensive of the result. But suddenly the Turks were driven back and the sway of fanaticism was over.

Two hundred years ago the Stuart dyn sty was hurled from the throne of England and Widiam of Orange succeeded them. At that time in polite circles, according to Montesquien, Christianity was never introduced into a conver ation but to be blasphemed. To day in England the clurch is omnipotent. Indidenty, it is claimed, has ben gaining ground during the past century. Its power is less t -day than it was numed) ately succeeding the Reformation, less than it was as the time of the French Revolution, when existed the worship of the goldess of reason-a worship false in theory and pernicious in practice. In 1795 when Timothy Dwigit accepted the presidency of Yale college, there were tur four or five students who were

society to every seventeen hundred and forty people. In 1880 there was one religious society to every five hundred and twenty people. In the former year THE FIRST METHODIST CHURCH IS there was but one minister among every two thousand inhabitants. In the latter there was one minister to every seven hundred and nineteen people. In 1800 one man among every fourteen was a church member. In 1880 the proportion was one to five. The Bisnop then considered the three principal divisions of the Christian reil gion-The Greek, the Roman and the Protesiant. The foothold of the first is in Russia almost exclusively, and there it has greatly deteriorated. There has been great apprehension as to the future of the Roman church. While it is usually considered the foe of general intelligence, while it never desires to educate its people where education is not computsory, and while it is still the toe of free institutions, yet the general trend of thought within the church is toward the better and purer. Spain and Italy have been wrested from the arbitrary doming n or the Holy See, Laly wholly renouncing the right of Papal inverterica. Catholicism is steadily losing ground and will continue to. Even now it is more liberal than the old Roman church, evidently imbibling ideas of freedom from the nature of our institutions. Our public school system should be jealously guarded a d funds appropriated for its use, should never be diverted to the service of any church. No man should be released from the duty of vigilance.

During the past century, Protestanism has radiated in all directions. During this period it became more clear what the Christian really is-tormerly, discussion turned to non-essentials. To-day only things essential are considered.

We now apprehend that salvation is not keeping one out of helt, but raising one to heaven. Jesus Christ and | his teachings are the Alpha and Omega of all Christianity. The laws of the church are now better understood. Observance of minute and irrelevant things is no longer considered as a means of saivation. And there is to-day greater unity among Protestants-all denominations now holding many central opin-1 118.

A ter the Bishop had concluded his sermon, the pastor gave the huancial condition of the church. He said that the total cost was $50,500. $44,000 had alr ady been paid, leaving a deficit of $6,500, which would be raised by subsc. option at that service if posrible, eighteen months being allowed for the payment of the last installment, of which there were four. At the evening worship the Rev. Dr. J H. Baytiss took for his text the 16th verse of the 119th Psalm "Thy word is true from the beginning; and every one of thy righteous judgments endureth forever," delivering therefrom an excellent sermon.

It required but a few minutes at the close of the sermon to raise the remaining five hundred doll rs

The ceremony wa end before women would vote wherever both morning and evening, were nearly twice the usual length, but all were so engrossed in them that the flight of time was not considered. Both sermons were unusually brilliant and of absorbing interest. The raising of $6,500 in so brief a time was to extraordinary an undertaking as to surpass the expectations of the most sanguine. The music of the choir was unusually good

THE I. O. O. F. BANQUETTED

By the Daughters of Rebekah.

The time set apart for the installation of officers of Sippo Lodge No. 48, I. O. O. F. was last evening; Jerry Bremer, district deputy, of Canal Fulton, was present to perform the ceremony. Following is a list of the officers installed for the ensuing term: Noble grand, J. W. Hise; vice grand, J. H. Fisher; recording secretary, Chas. G. King; permanent secretary, thas. Higginbotham; treas urer, Henry F. Ochler; warden, Wm. Mader; conductor, Chas Stevens; inside guardian, Benjamin Lantzer; outside guardian, Geo. Young; right supporter noble grand, Geo. Mong; left supporter noble grand, D. F. Rienoehl; right scene supporter, Wm. Wiseman; left scene supporter, O. P. Cline; right supporter. vice grand, I.O. Maier; left supporter vice grand, Daniel Griffiths.

After the usual impressive ceremonies upon such occasions, the meeting closed and the members were informed that they would be compelled to retire through the banquet room, as the other door was locked and the key to the same had been mislaid. Little suspecting what was in store they filed out to the banquet rcem, when to their surprise. they beneld a most elegant supper in waiting for them. The Daughters of Rebekah had taken possession, and white the installation was in progress, had prepared the supper-

The Independent's report has. The The Bishop declined to dedicate the no one shall stand within fifty feet of the polls but those voting or about to vote, owes its existence to woman suffrage.

She had no doubt that the twent:eth century girl would marvel very much when told of the unrepublican spirit of this republic when their mothers were young, and she imagines they will say, "But, mother, they did not tax you, did they, when they did not let you vote, for taxation without representation is tyranny?" And this mother will say, "Yes, The ceremony whereby Bishop An- m; dear; the tapplied only to our fathers and brothers." But it would not be long ed by the Bishop offering up a prayer if at the stars and stripes. The oppofor the acceptance by God of the build- sition had said that it would not make any material difference if the women yoted except to increase the number of votes cast, for they would vote exactly as their hu-bands and 'athers did. Now why should a woman vote the way her father, brother or husband did an; more than a man should vote as his sister or mother does? No, the women of this country have more independence than that It would certainly be a very mean and small spirited man who would refuse a woman thesa he privilege he took for himself and expected his sons to have.

It is a well known fact that all men do not want to vote. Orators and brass bands fail to bring them all out. Gov. emor Hill, of New York, in his last message recommended neasures to compel them to turn out on election day, and yet there are hundreds of thousands of women in this country pleading for this privilege which men refuse.

The question, however, is not what they will do with the ballot when the right is given, but when will this right be theirs. The existive was not asked what are you going to do with this power -it was simp y given to them. Yet you refuse to give the same privilege to your wives and daughters. In her own state women paid one-half of the taxes, and was it just that they should be taxed without the power to say one word? Out of the ten million voters in this country, two million could not read or write; now then, it women were allowed to vote it would add to this number nine million eight hundred thousand intelligent voters, for women on the whole are better educated than men.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 31, 1889. If Allison is to go into the cabinet, what is the objection to having

Mr. J. S. Clarkson in the senate? The New York Herald says that every New York theater, from the Bowery to the Broadway, is coming money. There are fortunes to be made on this side of the Mississippi

The New York Sun contains a di rectory of the new United States senate. There is nothing strange m it to be noticed until New Hampshire is reached, where, instead of the name William F. Chandler, are the two words "A Republican," Perhaps The Sun that shines for all will explain the reasons for Mr Chandler's distinction, or extinction.

Will some one tell us why wheat advanced in Wooster immediately atter Cleveland's election, and declined immediately after Harrison's

This was written by the intelligent editor of the Wayne County Democrat, who is unaware that commerce, so far as it could be affected by law, was affected only by Republican legislation during Cleveland's entire term, and that the rise and fall of the grain markets at the present juncture has no more to do with politics than the last eclipse.

In reference to the Young Men's Democratic Club, the Alliance Re view says: "A significant fact is that all the Democratic candidates for the spring election so far announced are club members" As The Indepen-DENT ironically intimated the other day, it is a very significant fact and one indicative of extremely offensive partisanship and very pernicious activity. From the observation quoted, and others on the street and elsewhere, it would seem that the organization under discussion is more zeal ously laboring for the centralization of municipal offices among its own members than the "spread of party principles." THE INDEPENDENT is ignorant of the names of all the candidates mentioned and is glad of it. The club is made up of well-meaning young fellows as a whole, but it is being led in the wrong direction when it asks for the resignation of all local affairs into its hands.

In the event of a war with Germany-a most unlikely occurrence yet not impossible, it is probable that an attack would be made upon the American coast cities. Ger many could put into action thirteen armored ships of from thirty-five hundred to nine thousand seven hundred and fifty tons displacement: four ast unarmored cruisers, and fifteen slower frigates and corvette-: and five torpedo boats, besides ships under construction. The United States has fourteen cruisers for immediate service, and could probably use the old monitors and wooden corvettes for coast defenses. The German was ships could not approach New York nearer than eleven miles with safety, and according to guns on German boats have a range of over ten miles. Brooklyn offers many vulnerable points. The New York Hern'd sams up the situation and concludes that, defenseless as we are Germany would have a hard time trying to defeat us at so great aires. Probably a majority of the attraction or common to the control a distance from the source other Senator- are poor men, compary and to the excellent example set besupplies.

Bismarck said in the Reichstag the other day, " * * * also in Samos we are in the fullest accord with England, and advance hand in hand with her. (Cheers.) " That is frankness extraordinary. It requires no further explanation to show why England is silent at the present juncture, and proves that the Amer ican newspapers were right in declaring that Germany and England havea private arrangement for dividing the Pacific islands. But what will poor Bayard do about it.

There is good news from the Pennsylvania Company. As usual that corporation responds to what appears to be public sentiment, by ordering an investigation as to the desirability of putting on passenger trains to Cleveland, via. the M. & C., and C., A. & C. railroads. This is the result of the newspaper report that a petition for the accomodation was being circulated, in advance of the sending of the petition itself. Canal Fulton and Akron certainly trated wherever officials may arhave an interest in this matter, and should come to Massillon's aid, by circulating petitions similar to the one signed here, road bilt is published elsewhere. It is not lively reading, but it deals with a subject of untold importance. It is a well co sidered bill. It is not perfect, perhaps, but there is no real objection to it. It is framed so as to apply only to certain specified counties, Stark not being among them. This is not as it should be When there are any governmental blessings lying around loose, Stark wants them. It is in the power of Messrs. Wilhelm and Monnot to have Stark county numbered with the others, and probably they will exercise it if their constituents manifest a desire to have them do so.

A brief synopsis of the Tryon

The New York Sun publishes al the official correspondence between Commander Leary, of the Adams, and Captain Fritzee, of the German corvette Adler, both statio ed at Samoa, showing how systematically the latter defended and abetted the Samoan rebels, thus violating the principles of international law, and committing a breach of neutrality. The Sun concludes:

"The facts appear, moreover, not in any possibly exaggerated or inaccurate newspaper correspondence from Apia, but in the official reports and letters of a brave and intelligent American naval officer, whose honest blood must have boiled again and again when he remembered the restraint he was under, thanks to the feeble policy of a bamboozled and outwitted administration at Washington."

The right of suffrage and of representation, now denied to the women of Ohio, permits of no argument except on one side. The tyrant man has no business to stop to consider whether woman desires to vote, whether she would vote, or whether it is expedient that be should vote. The question is, bas she strip to vote? Most certainly she has oved whole scheme of governer is a failure. If she in be taxed and held amenable to every law and ordinance, she ought to be privileged to say how she shall be taxed, and who shall enforce the statutes. Should she decline to avail herself of such a privilege, it is a matter between herself and her conscience. The move ment in favor of equal suffrage in Ohio is growing, and has taken strong root in Massillon. May it increase and prosper and succeed

THE COULTER BILL.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Monnot The Independent has been provided with a copy of Mr. Coulters senate till, which provides that certain classes of legal advertisements. and such others "as the auditor. treasurer, probate judge, or commissioners may deem proper, shall be published in two newspapers of opposite politics, if there be such published in the county; and in all counties having cities of ten thousand inhabitants, not the county seas of such counties additional publication of such notices shall be made in two newspapers of opposite politics in such city; but this chapter shall not apply to the publication of notices f delinquent tax and forfeited band

This is an excellent bill so far as it goes, tending to regulate a gross mjustice to the public, and to such publishers as may not be located at county seats It is notorious that at present all this business is concenbitrarily choose, until the control of such advertising is reckoned among the legitimate perquisites of favored newspapers. It is even made the basis of many a political fight. and the cause of the sacrifice of all candidates for the benefit of the one whose elevation is for serfish ends

But the bill does not go quite for enough. The specification that the bill, if passed, shall apply only to cities of ten thousand inhabitants would be well enough if there were any official census later than that of 1880. According to that census there are less than half a dozen cities, not county seats, having that population, while to-day there are a score of them Certainly the clause should be amended so as to be of some real benefit. With an annual school enumeration and frequent elections it ought not to be difficult to arrange the matter. Then again, sheriffs of countries are relieved from the necessity of distributing their patronage, and the exemption of forfeited land sales is distinctly stated. As the bulk of county advertising is in the bands of the sheriff, and as land sales are liable to occur in any portion of counties, there seems to be no good looks like a very suspicious clause It is a plain matter of common sense that the publication of land sale advertises ents in newspapers issued at the point nearest the land in question, will do the most good.

THE INDEPENDENT is not so selfish as to wish the passage of a bill to double the annual expense of official adverti-ing, and it only desires to see the question settled equitably, so that a publisher's location will not determine his favor in the court house, and so that public notices may be promulgated in the localities for which they are particularly intended.

The merry legislators at Columbus thought it tremendously funny when the parson prayed: "O, Lord, te ch these members to remember and to know that there are no free passes to heaven." And consequently one of their number prepared the following equally uppy resolution:

"Resolved, By the House of Representatives, that anyone offering prayer for this House shall be probibited from giving utterance to words which may reflect upon roads. over which Colonel Fred Blenkner has no control.'

THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY.

The Ohio Legislature Will Attempt to Revoke Its Charter.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 80.-A radical mova has been nearly determined upon by the attorney general in relation to true is and combinations in this state. It is interded to bring suit in the supreme court to revoke the charter of the Standard Oil company and the Barber Match company, of Akron, O. While it is understood that there is some hesitancy about instituting quo warranto proceedings on the evidence in hand, a few fragments of testimony, which it is believed can easily be supplied, are lacking, and when these are furnished a definite line of action will be decided upon.

The former will probably he the first one to receive attention from the state authorities. The proposed investigation into the methods of the Standard Oil company is the outcome of the movement set on foot by the legislative committee, composed of members of the senate and house, charged with the task of looking into pools and trusts. The state committee, now in Cincinnati examining into the school book monopoly, is exclusively engaged by Van Antwerp, Bragg & Company.

For some weeks the Standard Oil company was under fire, and the evidence secured has been submitted to Attorney General Watson, who has agreed to institute suit. All recognize the magnitude of an undertaking to oust the Standard Oil company, and there is a disposition to carefully consider the matter in all its bearings before taking steps. An outline of the evidence now in the possession of the committee was laid before the attorney general, who spent considerable time in looking up anthorities on pools and trusts.

The proposed suit is looked up in as a bold Ta members of the committee, including Senator Taylor, chairman, are heartily in earnest. Some members of the committee are of the opinion that the evidence aiready collected is sufficient to warrant the proceedings. The committee expects in a tew days to go to Cleveland, Lima, Findlay, Carey and other points in the productive or manufacturing district and secure additional evidence to be used in the case.

Singular Experience of the Oklahoma Bill in the House.

DEATH STEPS IN WHENEVER IT IS CALLED UP FOR DEBATE.

Chief Justice Waite, General Phil. Sherldan and Congressman Burnes-The Case Probably Without Parallel In the His tory of Legislation-Colonel Lamont Tired of Politics.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 .- The Oklahoma bill has had a curious experience in the house, one that has probably not been matched in the history of legislation. On each occasion that a day has been fixed for its consideration, the house has been adjourned on account of the death of some public man. Mr. Springer, who is the author and champion of the bill, secured a special order for a vote upon the measure last winter, but on the date fixed the unexpected death of Chief Justice Waite caused the house to ad-

It was some time before Mr. Springer could get another special order through the house, but he succeeded late in the summer. Again death interfered; for on the day upon which the special order was to take effect the demise of Gen. Sheridan was announced. Each succeeding attempt was met by increased difficulties, but by a compromise of the opposition Mr. Springer had a special order fixed to take effect on Thursday last. It was on that day that Mr. Burn's death was announced to the house, and the consequent adjournment once more interfered to prevent consideration of the bill.

The last order, however, is continuous until the final vote is reached. Mr. Springer will call up the measure as soon as the sundry  $oldsymbol{e}$ ivil oppropriation bill is dispose la of, which will be one day during the present week.

Members are beginning to wonder if the angel of death will again spread his wings in the face of Mr. Springer's pet measure, and, if so, which of their number will be the vic-

In that time the membership has doubled, and throughout the order generally the increase in membership is jet more marked. When this order was instituted the founders gave it the benefit of their long expersence with the workings of the oldest and most reliable fraternal insurance or ganizations. As is always the case, with institutions of this kind, the Protected Home Circle, with a small membership, was hampered with heavy claims against it, resulting from deaths in its ranks be fore the membership had assumed the size calculated to easily bear the burden. The integrity and wisdom of its founders however, was of such a character as to command the confidence of some of the b st business men of Sharon, Pa., who were familiar with its objects and its plans to airther the same. They promitly paid all claims until the order should become able to stand upon its ov. n bearings. E Russell, A. C. Corns, C. F. Porter, W. A. Ulman and C. A. Ricks. The new suite of apartments proved very pleasant, affording every passible accommodation. The Sippo Mills' offices were used as the ladies' toilet rooms and the men make use of the ante-rooms. Dancing to the music of Ruheimer's orchestra, took place on the canva floored main hall, card tables were occupies in the wardrobe chamber, and refreshments were served in the banquet hall. The supperwas quite elaborate, and was served very deally under the direction of Mrs. II omoson. That the carriages d d not begin to leave until after 2 o'clock is proof sufficient that the enjoyment of the occasion was thorough. It has been suggested that the latter part of inture evenings might be devited to the cotillon, and it may perhaps be acted upon. #### THE TRYON BILL

For Improving the Roads of Ohio,

One of the most important mea ures now before the Obio legis ature is H n. H. G. Tryon's bill amending the read singing and speaking, alternated by laws of the State. The most important features of the bill may be briefly out lined as f dlows:

The bill provides that the town-hip trustees shall appoint a supervisor for each voting precinct in the township, and that each precinct shall constitute a road district. The supervisor is to give bond for the faithful performance of duty, hold effice for one year and receive two dohars per day for time act ualty employed.

An important feature of the bill is that which makes it the duty of the township trusters to purchase improved implements for road making in sufficient quantity for the use of the township.

"The bill provides that the trustees shall determine a rate of tax to be levied for road purposes upon the taxabis property in their respective townships, that of Canton, who have been visiting Miss | the county auditor shall assess the same, and that the tax so assessed shall be collected and turned over to the treasurer of the township; and that the trustees shall anually set apart such portion of Robert Ray, Miss Laura Laviers and Mi the road tax as they deem best (in payment of contracts) for permanent im- | B. #### Interesting Things About Bogota,

Those who attended the services at the Presbyterian church on Sunday for braving the storm. The addresses by Rev. M. E. Caldwell, missionary from Bogota, South America, were word pictures, and were highly enjoyed by all. for they were rich in matter, and very interesting in manner, as Mr. Caldwell has a ready utterance, a clear and strong derivery, and uses no notes. The information he imparted relative to the country, climate, productions and people of Colombia and Bogota, their methods of travel, and above all, their educationaand religious conditions and needs, were not only most important, but had all the charm of novelty, since so little of it had been or could be learned from other Bources. His hearers will ever have a clearer and more accurate knowledge of Bogota and the vast country around it.

BURNS'S BIRTHDAY,

How it was Celebrated at the West

MR. EDITOR:-The one hundred and thictieth birthday anniversary of Robert Burns, the Scotch poet, was fittingly cerebrated in the commodious residence of Mr, and Mrs. Andrew C. Miller, on Friday evening last, by the Scotch people of this vicinity and their friends, and although the night was extremely dark and muddy, fully one hundred and forty pers ns were present. Mr. and Mrs. Miller threw open their doors and bid a hearty welcome to all to participate in the pleasures of the evening. Two large tables were erected in his new half, which seated sixty-four persons at the same time. The supper, which was all the mner man could desire, being served, the tables were cleared, and the master of ceremonies, Mr. Wm. G. Miller, called the assemblage to order. He reviewed at length the life, character and works of Robert Burns. Robert H. Folger, of Massillon, was expected to deliver an addre s, but owing to the inclemency of the weather, he tailed to put in an appearance, Dr. Archibald B Campbell, of Canal Fulton, was then called on for an address, which took his heavers by storm. The Doctor, after quoting a great many of Burns's sayings, paid a glowing ribute to the general characteristics of the Scotch people. #### THE REIGN OF GINGHAM.

OLIVE HARPER SAYS IT IS TO PRE-VAIL NEXT SUMMER.

Some Points About the Gowns to Se Worn When Blizzards Have Given Place to Midsummer Breezes-The Richness of the Satines and How to Make Them Un.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—The new materials for spring and summer dresses have arrived, and the array is dazzling. The ladies are in a rage of shopping, and soon there will be nothing left but broken lots. The purchases are made now so as to give the dressmakers time to make up the gowns, and also for those who make their own dresses to have them all ready for the lenten season. During this penitential time the summer gowns are made.

The new summer goods consist of new effects in ginghams, satines, mousseline delaine, challies, India silks, piques, and new silks of peculiar pattern and coloring, and in white goods.

The largest variety is seen in ginghams, and these surpass anything of their kind in beauty and fineness. The coloring is exquisite, and they are really more beautiful than any silk or expensive goods now seen.

Some of the ginghams are made in stripes an inch and a half wide, of white and scarlet, or

Others have solid stripes, alternathave stripes of delicately tinted plaids with lace stripes in so many different varieties detailed mention of them is impossible. Then there are plaids with large broken figures, and from that down to the pu head plaid in two colors, and with other plaids LACE GINGHAM COSTUME, of the shades of gray, green, pink, blue, or yellow or brown, alternated with white, each square outlined with a lace work of floss. There are plain equal stripes in all the newest tints and colors, and others where there are wide stripes in white or solid gray, light brown or other tints, alternating with a wide stripe made up of a dozen narrow ones of different widths and colors. Others again have plain colored stripes with plaid stripes as offset, and altogether they are so soft, so fine and so elegant that no lady with an eye to beauty and the fitness of things can pass them without desire.

Just as I wrote the last line I turned over the samples again, and find one with a cream white ground, with a three-inch stripe, SUMMER TOILET OF GINGHAM.

One thing is notable among these new goods, and that is each principal design is carried out in lifteen different colorthe style of pattern can be suited in any color. Some of these cost thirty-five cents a yard and others seventy. They will all wash well. They run through all the tints, and but few are found in dark colors, except the indigo blue, cardinal, gray and browns. The variety is so great that I could hardly count them. The pretty old fashioned pinhead check in brown, blue, pink, scarlet, green and yellow, alternated with white, are soft and fine, and will be fresh as long as a thread lasts, and cost from eighteen cents up, and run about a yard wide, Those which have a plain and a brocaded stripe cost about forty-five cents, and no silk could make prettier toilets. They can be made up in any style that suits individual taste. The summer toilet of gingleier in the illustration is a pretty model to follow with any variations that the Lat. 's taste may suggest.

GINGHAM SUIT has red and black hor eshoes, with white nails. Another pattern has polla dots of black and other celer, while still others have squares made of detied fines. These goods are the best possible for wear and well adapted to children's dresses. They are also produced in indigoblue and dark brown, and have stripes, dots and, in fact, almost all baids of designs, but all small and extremely neat, They cost bity cents per yard.

The new satines are really too beautihave seen such a variety of high grade goods of that kind. They are so sheer and fine that they have all the gloss of real satin, with the most beautiful coloring and patterns. Terra cotta, indigo blue, gray blue and a soft dove gray are the newest shades. There are three distinct styles in the designs-one where the patterns are large and striking, yet of great beauty; others of smaller geometrical and floral patterns and flowers in natural colors, and others of intricate cashmere pattern. These last have the design all over and are of refined color and taste. These will be worn as morning gowns, tea gowns and in polonaises, according to fancy, as well as in outdoor costumes. Some of the indigo blues have flowers and grasses in white or paler blue

There is a new white muslin, softer than book muslin and not quite so soft as mull, and this is to be made up with a deep hem at the bottom, above which a wide band of embroidery is worked, between two rows of hemstitching. There are no scollops at the bottom. The drapery is made of plain muslin. The embroidery in these costumes is arranged so as to leave the bottom for a wide hem. This is very pretty and novel.

Gingham suits are made up whenever practicable, on the bias, and f equently two sizes of plaids are utilized, the smaller for the upper and the arger for the bottom parts.

We always have cotton goods in various styles, but we have not had anything like the new mousseline delaines for many years, and now we are offered intervals are some of the prettiest patterns in the softflowers woven in 'est and daintiest lovely soft gray has black hawthorn sprays upon it. A dark brown has minlature pink roses with their green leaves upon it, and other trowns have cream and white figures. One delicate tan color has sprays of maidenhair fern in shaded brown. Other patterns show black geometrical designs on cream ground, double stripes and dots on exquisitely tinted ground and cardinal roses on indigo ground, and in short so many and such perfect patterns that it would be an impossible task to particularize them all. This material is about a yard wide and costs from fifty to sixty cents. Our grandmothers used to have such goods. and it is a wonder it was not revived long

The new summer silks follow the same fancy for those quaint old designs, and I have before me twenty-one samples of summer silks, all of which are in different shades and colors, but all bearing the same pattern of a loose bunch of those fine, soft grasses that are so delicate and dainty. Green, ecru, indico and brown. yellow, pink, black, garnet, maroon and that lovely dove gray which has just a suspicion of purple in it, besides the always popular pearl gray. Tan and nankin colors are also prominent in all the new

There are also new light weight tweeds and Cheviots for summer and spring outing, and the new cashmeres which, however, are only new in certain ings and tints, so that those who admire, new combinations of color. Cashmeres can now be bought in good quality at 60 to 75 cents.

After the light summer silks for dress day wear come the heavier line silks which will be used to make up with evening toilets and dinner dresses for ceremomous occasions. Among these are six distinct styles. One is a heavy Sicilienne in dark gray, with a brocade representing plumes in silver gray satin. The same idea is shown in clive and grass green, chaudron and copper, bronze and indigo and electric blue. The pattern is over ten inches long. Another has stripes of gray armure weave silk, with plain black satin stripes and checked stripes. This same pattern is made in emerald green and black satin. Another style has a clouded effect brocaded in wide stripes, the alternating stripes being of moire. The smoked costume is made of goods of this kind. The color For many years pique has not been in the model is of tan color and rich mahoga my lown. The front is made of front to a point.

> Ottoman, Siglienne and corded, a.d. nearly all are soft family. The faille Francaise is also very soft, and the armures are so the rible that they drape almost fike cash note. One offer very rich and band on sailk is in stripes two inches vede of a smale stripe plan, and a basket weave, or bireseye in brounde in some centrasting color. For a stance, olive and vellow, granet and pan', plane color or black and light block it ile bus never been so cheap as it is now, and never as handsome.

In my real letter I shall prove some more of the styles of most cap the spring and summer costume out of the beautiful goods now officien for the pleasure of those whose beauty they are intended to echance.

There are also many new tanges in white dress goods, but, bless not we couldn't get haif in one letter; besides, if we did there would be nothing left for the next, and I don't propo e to curtail my usefulness. OLIVE HARPER.

FARM AND GARDEN.

SUBJECTS THAT CANNOT FAIL TO INTEREST WIDE AWAKE READERS.

Progress of the Draught Horse Interest in This Country-The Demand for Grade Draught Horses an Established Feature in the Horse Trade.

The year 1888 will be remembered by everybody interested in the importation of draught horses as one of unusual activity and extensive trade to the importers of the United States. These stout, well built, muscular horses have included alike the heavy animals from Great Britain, from France and from Belgium. There is no one breed that please all alike, hence we have Percherons and French draught horses from France, Clydesdales from Scotland, the Shires trom England, Belgian horses from Belgium and the coach horses from England and France.

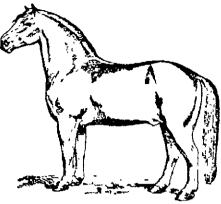

FIG. 1--FRENCH DRAUGHT HORSE. The increased importations noticed is the outcome of a constantly growing demand for imported draught stallions. Everywhere the demand for grade draught horses is becoming an established feature of the horse trade. Not only are these required for street car purposes, for heavy delivery wagons, etc., in large cities, but our more progressive farmers are employing horses for the heavy work on their farms that combine the several desirable qualities of size, weight, endurance and action.

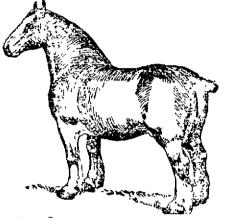

FIG. 2-CLYDESDALE STALLION. Heretofore our farmers, as a rule, have raised too many small, inferior horses, horses unequal to the heavier work of the farm, unattractive as carriage horses, and possessing small value when sent to the markets. The experience of the past ten or twelve years appears to indicate that the grades of the various draught horses of Europe, as raised in our own country, are just what are requireds In any event, there is at the present time a sufficient home demand for these grade draught horses to encourage their increased production.

Northern Agriculturist calls attention to the fart that the improved breeders in England and France give their attention to breeding superior individuals, and let the color be what it will. In America many seek color first and let the individual be what it may. At the International show at Brussels the grand gold medal stallion (best of any age or breed) was a dapple gray Belgian, and the gold medal mare was a white Boulonnais: and at the shows in France the whites and dapple grays won almost all the prizes and constituted over threefourths of the horses in the draught classes.

The Suffolks of England, one of the finest draught horses in the world, breed true to color, but the color unfortunately is chestnut, not a fashionable color in America.

In the first cut is shown a handsome specimen of the black type of the French draught horse. The second cut illustrates a prize Clydesdale stallion. The grade draught horse as seen in the United States is the outcome of mating either the heavy draught sire with a dam of lighter character, or mating a lighter weight sire with a full blood draught mare.

A CAPITAL GOSSIPER.

THE SMALL TALK MONGER IN WASH-INGTON IS A MAN.

But He Tells Some Good Stories About the Men of the Nation-The Burns Family Frank Lawler-Senator Ingalis' Red Cravat-Philetus Sawyer's Son.

[Special Correspondence]

Washington, Jan. 24.—Your Washington gossiper is a man. He has been here no one knows how many years. He knows everybody. It is the delight of his life to take you up in the press galleries, the best place in the world to see public men, and point out faces to you. His tongue moves in symphony with his forefinger. There's nobody too great for him to speak of in a familiar way, nobody too obscure for him to know something about.

"There," he says, pointing with his lead pencil to a big man in one of the rear seats of the house, "is Jun Burns, of Missouri. Know Jim? I mean the large man with the light mustache and the curly hair. That's one of the best men in the world. He weighs 225 pounds and isn't a lightweight in debate or anything else. Comes from the St. Joseph district in Missouri. He is rich. Queer thing about the Burns family is that they hold all their property in common. There's Jim and his two brothers and his two sons. Altogether they are worth about $8,000,000, and every cent of it is held in common. They have the biggest bank in St. Joseph, lots of real estate and stocks. The three Burns brothers and Jim's two sons are all chums. They live together in a great house in St. Joseph. The brothers are all widowers, and the boys have never married. Their house is like a club house, and one of the best places in the world to spend a few weeks. They have a country house at a summer resort near St Joseph. Great times they have out there. They have plenty of guests from among "the boys" of St. Jo, Kansas City and St. Louis. It is esteemed an honor as well as a pleasure to be invited to spend a few days with the Burnses. The Burnses are it sys together. That's one of Jim's sons sitting beside him now, How did he get in on the floor, seeing he isn't a member? I don't know. Guess he's a committee clerk or something, nominally. ominally. * ** *
Tell you a story about this Burns boy.

All the Burns boys play poler. Their father taught them how when they were little fellows. This one in particular is a great poker player. Last summer the three Burns brothers and Jim's two boys were playing a pretty stiff game one night out at their summer house. They are always playing together, and don't like to play with outsiders. On this occasion young Burns lost several big pots to his father, and then turned round and put up a hand on the old man, and beat him out of $7,000 at one show down. But you mustn't get the idea that Jim Burns is a rough man. He's a gentleman, and was finely educated He graduated second in his class at Harvard, was a circuit judge for several years, and has been in congress since 1851. He lives at Willard's hotel, where he pays $350 a month for his rooms, so he will have a good place in which to keep bachelors' hall for the entertainment of the other Burnses, who are often with him

"The man in light clothes, with a red necktie, a smile on his face, and bangs on his torehead? That is William Walter Phe'ps, of New Jersey. He looks somewhat like a dude, but people who think he is one don't know him. Phelps is a bruny man. At Yale be was a leader both in the class room and on the campus. He looks effeminate, but he is an athlete. His muscles are like steel. He has a stock ranch down in Texas, and when he goes down there he's a Texan. Jumps a bronco and rides turry miles without stopping, carries a gun and drinks a little whisky with the natives just to keep them good natured. Phelps had brains enough to make his own way in life. Before he was 25 years old he had a large law practice. Made his fortune in railroads. Some years ago he had nearly his whole fortune invested in one enterprise—the Texas Central He kept sending good money after bad in that rat hole till his friends advised him to pull out or he would ruin himself. The road wouldn't pay. But Phelps stuck to it till he had put in $1,000,000, and finally the road turned the hill and made him a very rich man. He is one of the most genial men in public life. Everybody likes him. His manners are soft, almost effeminate But if you think he hasn't a will just try him once. He can yes or no quicker and stick to it longer than any man in congress. He likes to be frank and communicative when frankness will help somebody and hurt nobody, but you couldn't pull a word out of him with a your of steers when there are reasons why he shouldn't talk. He adores Blune and is roud of giving dinners. It is one of the treats of Washington to sit at his table. He is generous with his money, but makes no display of it. He gives away more money in charity than anybody I know of in Washington. Do you temember how he saved young Eno from going to prison by going down into his pocket and pulling out $110,000, and fairly shaming Eno's rich father into putting up a similar sum to save his his boy? Phelps did that simply out of the goodness of his heart, and not because he had any selfish interest in young

Eno, for he hadn't "I know of another case. When Phelps was down in Texas some years ago he met Bill, Crain, now in congress. Crain was lamenting his bad luck in a cattle ranch, and said he was likely to lose everything he had. How much would save your asked Phelps Twenty thousand dollars, said Crain. The let you have it, replied I helps, as quick as that, and he gave harr his ere cen the spot. Cram i as sance paid tack every dollar of the foar "local the kind of a man Pholps is the lead tar fancer, a splendid talker, and a man webs heart

"The little rum sitting down there in front is I rank Lawler. Sur ly you've heard of him. He comes from Chicago. Used to keep a saloon there. Likes to talk about the poor workingman end twist the tail of the British lim Some people poke fun at brank be ause he muiders the queen's English and blarneys so much, but I think he deserves a good deal of credit for pulling himself up the way he has without any early advantages. He is the hardest working man in congress. At 9 o'clock every morning he begins his rounds of the departments. He works through more pensions and things like that than waybody. Get a case in Frank Lawler's feathers.—The Epoch.

hands, and it's almost as good as won. He sticks and hangs like a leech. About 11 o'clock he runs around the hotels, and if there's anybody in town from Chicago he shows them the sights, takes them up to call on the president, and does the fair thing by them generally. After his work in the house is done he sits up till 2 or 8 o clock in the morning writing letters and sending out public documents. He is the greatest letter writer in congress. llar? Should say he was. The chances are he'll come to congress as long as he wants to. He spends $500 a year for public documents to be mailed his constituents. All the people in his district have small libraries of public documents. Why, even the switchmen and gate tenders along the railroads that run through Frank's district have libraries of public documents piled up in their little shanties. They all swear by Frank Lawler. He's a man of good habits, and is nobody's fool, either. To show you how smart he is I'll tell you he keeps a pair of eye glasses in his vest pocket. When he meets anybody that knows him and that he can't place he shakes hands warmly, ingeniously finds out who the person is, and then pulls out his glasses, wipes them carefully and says. Why, of course. I'd a-known you in a minute if I'd had my glasses on. You see, my eyes are getting weak. Frank Lawler's eyes are as good as yours or mine. r mine.
"That great heavy man, with a body as big as a tobacco hogshead, is Barnes, of Georgia. He weighs more than 300 pounds, and is the biggest man in Congress by long odds, and one of the most eloquent. Heard a good story about Barnes. The other day he went with some southern friends of his up into the loft of the war, state and navy building, where a fine view of the city and fiver is to be had. While they were up there Barnes' friends noticed hun to turn pale and look scared. They asked him what the matter was, and he tremblingly pointed to a placard which read.

The supporting strength of thus floor is 150 lbs. per sq. ft.

" 'Great God!' he exclaimed, 'I weigh 800 pounds, and if I don't straddle out

"And suiting his action to the word he began to take long steps so his whole weight wouldn't come on any one square foot of the floor."

Thus the Washington gossiper rattles on about one man after another, no matter who. It is all the same to him. Go over to the senate and the first man he begins on is President Ingalls.

"Ingalis," he says, "is one of the brainiest men in the senate. The only trouble with him is he likes to say smart, cutting things. He doesn't mean half he says, but he is so fond of slashing and litting he can't let folks alone. I've heard him tear his best friends to pieces. What he likes best is to have people talk back to him. He likes to have people give him as good as hesends, and I think if some men would take a whack at him instead of going off and talking about his malignity he'd respect them more, and they'd understand and like hum better. Next to lus wife, he is wonderfully fond of his family. I think he likes to ridicule men in a joking way. He used to board down at the Strathmore Arms hotel, where Logan lived. Congressman Thomas, of Illinois, boarded there, too, and Ingalls ased to nag Thomas unmercifully. Figure glances at me, if my clothes are shabby nally Thomas turned on his persecutor. he thinks, 'O, he is in hard luck and will Ingalls is like Phelps used to be in his be satisfied at any price.' If my appearfondness for red neckties, and one day ance is that of prosperity he'll be afraid he put on one that was unusually large to offer me a small place, or if not afraid and red. When they sat down to dinner at least ashamed. A woman should be that evening, Logan, Ingalls, Thomas even more particular. Her gowns give and others all at one table, Thomas began her place more than a man's coat. Men in this way:

"'Senator Logan,' said he, 'as I was coming up Twelith street this afternoon I saw something that shocked me very much, something that frightened me till the blood stood still in my veins.'

"'What was it?" inquired Logan. "'Why, I looked up toward this house and the building seemed to be on fire. It was wrapped in flames. I started and ran as fast as I could, thinking of what a terrible thing it would be if my wife and you and Mrs. Logan and all the others should not be able to get out, if the lurid flames should envelop and consume you, if we should have a great holocaust right here in our peaceful little hotel. The thought was so hornfying that I ran at the top of my speed, crying fire and rousing the people along the way. The shock to my nerves was so great that I am still trembling.

"'But what was it,' inquired Logan, 'that gave you such a nightmare as that?' "'As I came closer to the house,' Thomas replied, 'I saw what it was. Senator logalls was standing on the front steps, where the rays of the setting sun caught him, and he had that neck-

"For once in his life Ingalls was knocked out. While Logan and the others laughed the senator from Kansas bushed as red as the offending necktic, but he could make no reply. He didn't get mad, though, and when Mrs. Ingalls met Mrs. Thomas at Juncheon next day, she said, 'Do you know, Mis. Thomas James is very fond of your husband? Ingails and Thomas are now the best of triends, for the president of the senate likes a man who sasses back, but he has never since that day worn a red necktie

"Talking about bug men, that round headed, gray old fellow there isn't so very small. He is Senator Sawyer, of Wisconsin. The politicians say he has the state of Wisconsin in his pocket. Sawyer told me once he came to the scrate simply because he had nothing else to do. He was dying of ennur. The senatorial scat was a sort of plaything for him. He says now he has got all the fun out of it there is to be had and that he doesn't care to come back any more. But he has four years yet to serve. Sawyer is very fond of his son, who is out west, Texas, I think, on a cattle ranch. When the young man got ready to start out for himself the old gentleman gavo him $450,000 and told him to take good care of himself and his money. 'That isn't the way I started in life,' added the senator: 'morder to pe out into the world and get a start on my own hook. I had to buy my time from the master to whom I was apprenticed. It cost me $100 of hard carned money to get away from the Hacksmith shop and into the lumber business."

If you have the time to space you Vaslington gossiper will go on like tac all the accention. He is a very enter a ming fellow. WALTER WALLEAN

Custom-Here is something in my chicken salad, waiter, that looks a goo d-al like feathers.

Difficult to Understand.

The Soap Mines of Nevada

In Nevada are several deposits of mineral soap. One of these has been worked for three or four years. The soap is sometimes made up into cakes as it comes from the mine, but usually it is toned down by admixture with various other soaps. In Dakota and Wyoming are also deposits of natural soap. In regions where soda, borax and mineral oils abound it is only necessary to bring these ingredients together and a soap mine is the result. Hot springs assist materially in uniting and concentrating the materials provided by nature. The soap found about hot springs is, therefore, generally harder and more perfect than that produced in the dry way in and about the basins of extinct lakes.

The waters of Owens and Mono lakes are so thoroughly saturated with borax and soda in solution that the addition of any oleaginous matter produces soap. The waters of Mono lake produce myriads of grubs (which after a time become flies) which are washed ashore, and in some places form beaches a foot or two in depth. The oily matter contained in the grubs or flies, uniting with the alkali in the water of the lake, forms a deposit of soap an inch or two in thickness each year. Thus, in the course of ages, a deposit of natural soap of great depth has been built upon the east side of the alkali lakes, where the worms are strandedprevailing winds being from the west. hese particular grubs are the only living things found in the waters of Mono and Owens lakes,

At certain seasons an insectivorous duck, called the spoonbill, frequents these lakes, and, feeding upon the aquatic flies and grubs, becomes so fat it can hardly fly. Hunters kill these spoonbill ducks for their oil, as the grub on which they feed imparts to them a fishy taste so strong that they cannot be eaten except by Indians, who cat both worms and ducks. Ducks killed by hunters and lost are sometimes found in the waters of the lake. All the feathers are eaten off the towl by the alkaline solution, and the layer of fat beneath the skin, an inch in thickness, is found to be changed to scap, hard as the best eastile an . beautifully white.—Virginia City Enterprise.

Poet Riley's Key to Success.

"Do you want to succeed in life?" asked James Whiteomb Riley, the hoosier poet, of Nelly Dl., whose book of poems has been most flatteringly received by the English public and press. "1 do," she replied, with an earnestness that might have been felt a block. "Then dress well," he said. "The secret of success is a good personal appearance Why, if I struck a town with only 50 cents in my pocket the first thing I'd do would be to go to a barber shop. A barber shop is the intelligence office and newspaper of every town. So, you see, my first move would be to go there. I'd bave a shave and give the barber my 50 cents, and when he offered me back the change I'd tell him, with a knightly wave of the hand, 'It's all right.' He would tell every body clse, and it would help me to get an opening somewhere. But about dress. Now wouldn't you rather give a nickel to a beggar who was brushed and had a clean face than to one who was not? Any one would. Mr. Wood talked about Alexander Hamilton, and as it was my duty on behalf of the society to thank him for his kindness in addressing us, I sat on the platform. Upon the table beside the speaker stood a picher and two turnblers. At frequent intervals during his talk Mr. Wood poured a little of the contents of the pitcher into the tumbler and tossed it off. I noticed that after each drink Mr. Wood became more animated, his periods were more glowing, his manner more assured the killing of their men the day b fore. It that all Mataafa natives were to be shot was said, was not to be respected. It was ordered all the wounded men who were being cared for m the native church near the American consulate to leave the sanctuary at once, as the German men-of-war were go ing to burn it with other native property. Consul Blacklock wrote a letter to Consul Knappe protesting against such action as hast referred to, if the report was correct. Consul Knappe answered by denying that such action was contemplated.

"During the afternoon King Mataafa, who had taken up his position in the village of Magnani, near the Vailcle German plantation, about two miles behind the town of Apia, received a letter from Consul Knappe, informing him that unless he came on board of one of the German men-of-war with his chiefs before 12 o'clock, noon, of the 20th, and gave up all the guns in the possession of his party, the German man-of-war would shell him in the bush. To this letter Matanfa made no reply.

"I visited the king in his camp late in the day. He told me that he deeply regretted lives of Germans, but they could have done nothing else, unless they would have been satisfied to be kided without making any resistance. He and his people, he said, had been goaded to desperation, and after having repeatedly stood the most cruel and unjust treatment without retaliating through a desire not to come into-conflict, with the Germans, yet the time had at last arrived when the Samoans intended to resist to the end. He hoped, he said, that the present difficulty would be settled without further loss of life on either side, but if the Germans attacked his party again he would not be responsi le for the action of his people, and the result might be that every German in Samoa would be killed, and all German property,

The king added that be had taken the greatest possible pains to notify his people that under no circumstances must the lives or property of Americans and the English people be placed in danger. "Consul Knappe attended a meeting of the consuls asked for by Consul Blacklock for the purpose of settling the war, if possible, Matatia to be present; but the German

Therefore I order the warrors in Taudmaniandae and Matafagatele to bring their arms to-day on board of the German man-of-war in the harbor of Matafagatele. When a red flag will be hoisted on top of the foremast of the man-of-war this will be the sign that you have to bring your arms on board the man-of-war in your boats, which has passed after the red flag has been hoisted on board the man-of-war, the latter will fire into the village of Matafagatele. I hope you will obey my orders. – DR. KNAPPE,

"'APIA, Dec. 21, 1888." "Consul Backlock had received a copy of Consul Knappe's letter early in the morning

"Notwithstanding the protest of Consul Blacklock, the German man-of-war began firing on the village at 9:15 o'clock, it having been deserted on the previous day by Mataala's turn, and hone of the Samoans having come on board for the purpose of giving up their arms, as ordered. Twenty-five shells

Consul Blacklock added that he had investigated the rumors about the Mata if a men, having been under the command of an American at the fights referred to, and also of this American having fired upon the German troops, and had discovered that the reports were interly groundless.

"On the evening of December 23 a meeting i of the three consuls and the captains of the American, English and German men-of-war was held at the British consulate for the purpose of deciding upon what should be considered the bounds of the neutral territory in Apia. Nothing could be agreed upon, however, the Germans demanding all sorts of now been arrested. concessions, but persistently refusing to grant any in return. The meeting adjourned until December 24, when another conference was beld, lasting three or four hours, and with similar results. It was then decided to abandon further efforts to arrive at an understanding with the Germans. > The situation in Samoa to-day, January 5, at the hour of the closing of the mail for the United States, is as follows: The German men-of-war are tranquil, but it is not known at what minute of the day or night may prove most disastrous to American and English lives and interests in Samoa. It is the universal opinion among English and American residents, and also among some Germans, that Dr. Knappe will be recalled by his government for the terrible blunders he has made curing his short term of office, covering only six weeks.

"Tamsase's men are still in the vicinity of Lautanuu, being kept back by Mataafa's near Lautannuu, and which the rebels must pass in order to reach Apia, unless coming in by water. Washington, Jan. 29.—The course of Bayard with reference to Samon is likely to lead to the disruption of the cabinet. Whitney is chafing under the inactivity of his department through lack of an avowed policy by the state department. While the truth of these rumors is unknown at present, the strained condition of affairs in the cabinet is undoubtedly the cause of their circulation, and developments for the next few days are watched with unusual interest.

Congressman Guenther, of Wisconsin, is the most prominent representative German-American in congress. He has no besitation in declaring for the United States against Germany, all along, in war as well as in peace.

"There is going to be no war," says Guenther. "The two countries are too far apart to make a fight possible. No hostile shot will ever be exchanged in Samoan waters or elsewhere between men-of-war sent there by Bismarck and Uncle Sam. American citizens of German birth and German descent will work for our country in time of peace and fight for it in time of war, if a time of war should ever come. When I say our country, I mean, of course, our adopted country, the United States of America.
